HELIOS

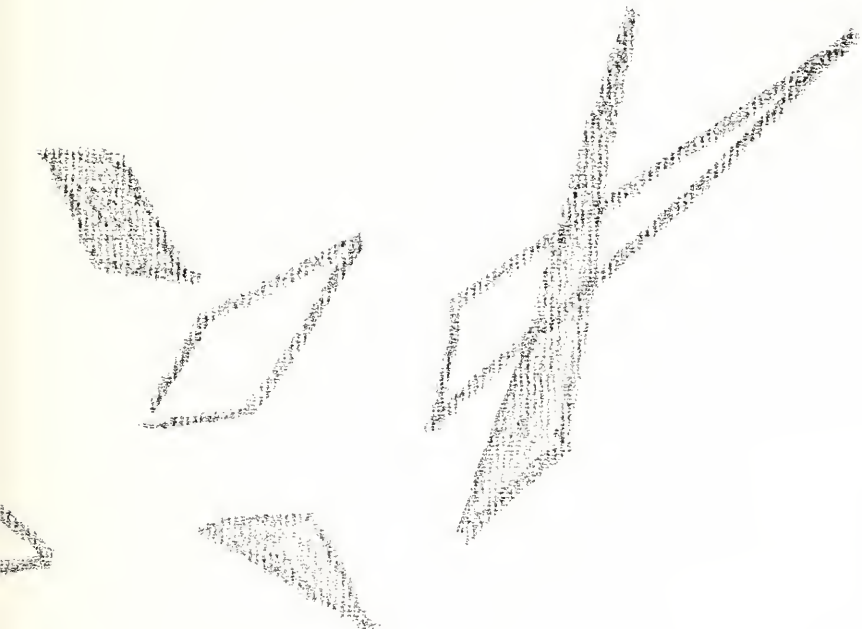

Foreword

The many hues of autumn leaves, the brilliant blues of fall skies, the bright yellows of football jerseys, the glitter of brass band instruments; a change of scene — the grays of November, the greens, reds, and glitter of December, the multi-colored sweaters and parkas at basketball games; a change of scene — the gloomy blues and gray whites of winter, the pastel pinks, blues, yellows, and greens seen at “Boys’ Heaven”, the navy and white of choir robes; a change of scene — the purple, yellow, and white of the crocus, the soft green of spring foliage, the orange of track suits, the rainbow of colors at the Junior-Senior Prom — this is KALEIDOSCOPE — the changing scene here at Central — colorful and exciting; “Kaleidoscope”, the theme for this year’s Helios Annual.

Dedication

Peace — as a word — cold, uncompromising, and feelingless: a noun meaning “harmony or quiet or security.” Unfortunately peace as an actuality is more difficult to define and even harder to obtain.

Like a kaleidoscope, peace is many faceted — with the pictures changing at the slightest movement. Today the world is faced with various peace problems. Some are national; some local; and some are of a school nature. As Greeks and Turks fire upon each other in Cyprus, negroes and whites are doing the same thing right here in the U.S. We, the citizens and future leaders of our nation, must meet problems in Cuba, South America, the U.S.S.R., and recently in Red China. Yet, still we fight for the rights of our citizens. Peace can be realized only wherever men are willing to work and struggle together instead of against one another.

Peace is idealistic; yet it must be obtained — sometime, somewhere, somehow — for not only today's generation, but tomorrow's and future tomorrows' as well. To be an idealist promotes growth in mind and action, a necessity for finding world tranquility.

Seeking peace and hoping for its realization, the staff of the 1964 Helios Annual dedicates this book to the prospect of peace for all mankind.

Because we believe that living and working together peacefully is a reality here at Central, we show a representative group of students raising the flag, as a symbol of our unity. They are Ruth Ann Booker, Nancy Hagerman, Larry Scudder, Tany Saenz, Esther Ryu, and Rita DeBruin.

Senior trackster Ulyses Scrivens clears a hurdle during a practice session at Housemon Field. Hurdles one has to clear during a track practice are indeed small when compared to those one will have to face in later life. However, it is the sense of sportsmanship, competition, and dedication one receives from track, as well as all other athletics, which helps one clear one's personal hurdles.

The halls of Central have come to mean a great deal more than passageways. They are the common meeting grounds for students throughout the day as well as before school. Also, the halls are the display grounds for the trophies and mementos of the past and present. Nevertheless, the halls of Central will come to mean to something special only to those students who given Central their service and devotion. Certainly, the halls of Central show a fundamental but sentimental part of school life.

Some students are viewed candidly during their music class. Apparently their interest in this class runs a little deeper than a casual one. It is very true that such classes as music provide a welcome reprieve for many students from the somewhat tiring academic ones. Music is certainly an integral part of school life at Centrol; one which helps to round out a student into a truly educated citizen.

FACULTY

Mr. Romani outlines a new program for the coming school year.

Principal Performs Kaleidoscopic Tasks

The principal's job has kaleidoscopic facets. An important job is the co-ordinating of teacher's activities and students into an effective operating body. Mr. Romani has put forth concentrated effort into making Central the best school in the city. As the school enlarges, there seems little doubt the demands made upon the school principal will continue to increase in volume and complexity. There is no end in sight to the numerous possibilities of the high school principal. The 60's will be an ever challenging battle. Nevertheless, the improvement of instruction is one of the more important, if not the most important, responsibility the principal must face. He must be constantly alert to seek out every possible method to improve the quality of teaching.

Mr. Romani, when questioned on the position of a high school principal, stated that in any school as complex as Central where it is necessary to plan for six grades, the principal could easily become a "time-marker." This he defined as an administrator who executes his duties assigned by the Board of Education, no more, no less. He takes charge of the existing program and operates according to policy — or — a principal can become a "change-maker"; one who is more subtle, more creative. He must be a perceptive student of human nature and of the world about him; receptive to new ideas suggested to him, spending many hours in study and thought, seeking inspiration. A new idea breathes or is suffocated because of that central figure, the principal. Creativity is encouraged and nourished; and if, after consultation with his colleagues, a new idea is thought to have merit, it is given a trial. Changes must take place! The degree of change in any school and the direction it takes depends upon leadership. A wise and strong principal will surround himself with a strong staff. Together they place high priority on education exploration, searching continuously for ways to improve the program of instruction.

Mr. Vruggink Completes Administrative Team

The responsibility of the assistant principal lies primarily in the area of curriculum and instruction. In supervising the program of instruction, he plans audio-visual materials; encourages faculty study groups and in-service training; has individual conferences with teachers; orders and supervises the storage of instructional materials such as library books, maps, tests, and equipment; meets and orients substitute and student teachers; and works with the principal in the making of schedules for, the assignment of, and the evaluation of teachers. The assistant principal also schedules all school-sponsored activities; helps develop curriculum materials on a city-wide basis and then applies them to Central; and assumes the duties of the principal when he is absent from the building. In order to keep up with the rapidly changing needs in education he must attend conferences and conventions and study constantly.

Mr. Vruggink feels that education is now, and will remain, in a changing, unstable state. Educators will need to be better informed, better prepared, and more flexible than at any time in our history. We must emphasize mathematical thinking and logical reasoning which will solve the problems of the future. The same is true in the field of the sciences where changes in teaching methods are constant so that teachers can prepare their students for the space age. Because of the advent of jet travel, the world has become smaller so social studies are an absolute necessity to foster understanding between the peoples of the earth.

Mr. Vruggink continued, stating that this points up the fact that curriculum and instructional practices are changing fast. The time is past when a teacher can teach the same material in the same way for twenty-five or thirty years but must instead use the new methods such as team teaching, programmed instruction, TV teaching, and a variety of other audio-visual devices. If we follow the trend, education will enter into an age of quality teaching in all areas of the school curriculum.

Using our intercom system, Mr. Vruggink announces a junior high assembly.

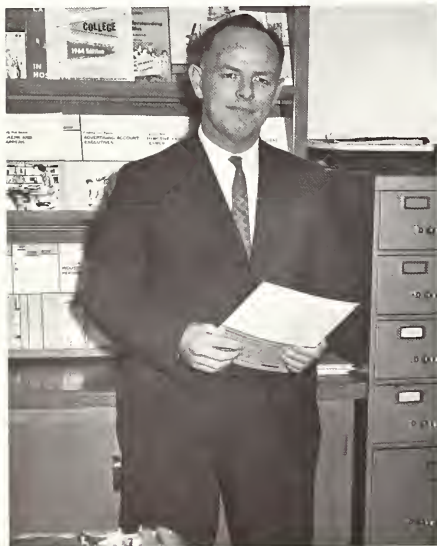

Mr. VanDerlaan, Miss Meyering, and Mr. Ritsema compose the major part of the counseling staff.

Specialists Perform Personal Services

Mr. Perrin does a competent job in holding down the head counseling post.

Counselors, librarians, the school nurse, and speech teacher all render services to Central that should be acknowledged. First, the counselors work with each student in the junior high in the planning of his program for his high school years. They also help students decide what vocation to pursue or what college to attend and courses to elect. Often, the counselors are influential in finding jobs or recommending students for after school jobs or ones related to the occupational training program. Next, the librarians run our school library efficiently and quietly. They secure reference materials, order fiction and non-fiction books and magazines, and check out books. They do the latter indirectly, however, through the students whom they instruct in library science. They also are available as reference sources to students and teachers, locate materials, and instruct in the use of the many services obtainable in the library system. The school nurse, who comes every Monday, helps students who have health problems and consults with those who are ill during the day. She also assists during the times when vaccinations and booster shots are given to students in school. Finally, the speech teacher, who is specially trained for his work, comes to Central several times a week to help students who have speech problems or impediments.

Mrs. Smolenski, the school nurse, gives a student a checkup.

Mr. Carlson helps correct speech problems among Central students.

Mrs. Brower and Miss Roggenbuck keep library organized and up to date.

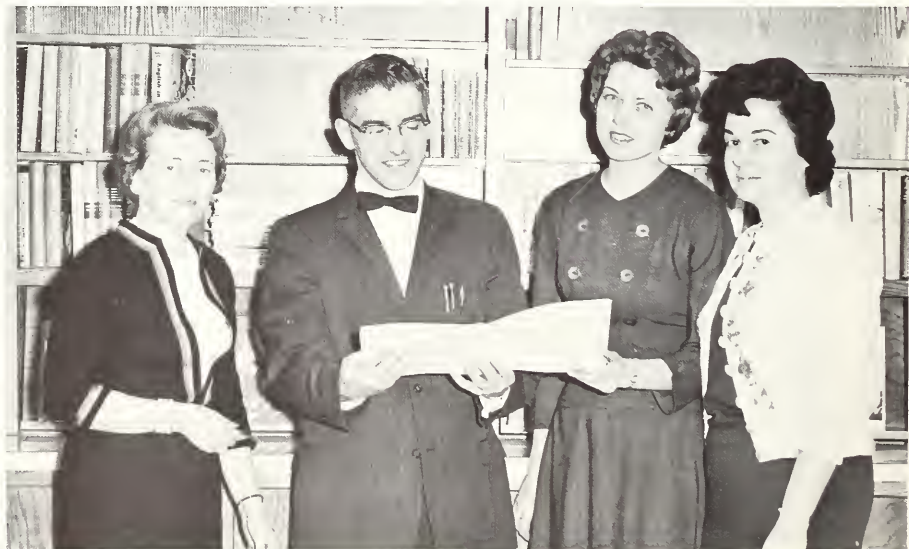

Miss Schriber is shown instructing Johan VanderTol in the technique of composing a good theme.

Because good communication is so important in today's world, the English Department plays a vital role in the education of Central students. This department gives instruction in language, composition, speech, and literature. By studying our language, students learn the mechanics of writing, usage, spelling, and punctuation. Composition assignments give the students experience in expressing their thoughts on paper. Practice in the oral expression is gained from giving individual speeches and participation in panel discussions. In fact, this training is considered so important that courses in speech and debate are available to any student who wishes to study further in this area. The study of literature is stressed in order to give the student an opportunity to observe and understand the actions, thoughts, ideals, motives, and ambitions of other people. The English Department, the core of the school program as communication is the center of life, strives to give the students necessary instruction. One essential part of the English Department which must not be forgotten, is the English Workshop. This is a class to which students may come any sixth hour to receive assistance in written or oral work from the staff of student tutors available.

English Studies Create Understanding

Mrs. Wonderscheid, Mr. Barkema, Miss Raymer, and Miss DeYoung discuss the possibilities of a new English curriculum.

Reversing the regular procedure, Miss Cassidy, Mrs. Pulliam, Miss Berg, and Mrs. Kemp try their hand at writing a theme.

Languages Close Gap Between Cultures

Central High School is proud to have a very fine foreign language department. Three courses are offered in this field in Latin, Spanish, and French. All three are two-year courses. Students study the origin, structure, and usage of each language. While they are doing this, the students also learn about the cultures that use these languages. In addition, the life, history, and customs of the peoples that have spoken and now speak these languages are scrutinized. Central's modern new language laboratory is used in these studies. All languages, but especially Spanish and French, which make use of the oral approach, are taught with the aid of this modern equipment. There is also a club for the student of each language. These clubs are designed to promote the spread of the language and the culture behind it. Such knowledge will help students to live successfully in our international world.

Miss Kukor and Miss Fennell display some of the equipment used in the language lab.

Students Learn To Appreciate Good Music

Mr. Schellenberger reviews a score of music to be used by the choir.

Placing the emphasis on the downbeat, Mr. Becker, conducts the Senior Band.

Mrs. Roman checks one of the numerous instruments in the music department.

Our music department offers something for everybody who is interested in music. Music, either vocal or instrumental, is a required course in both the seventh and eighth grades. An extra-curricular activity sponsored by the music department for junior high students is the Junior High Chorus. Later, students may join the Choir or either of the Glee Clubs which are run as organized classes. The instrumental section of the department provides opportunity for instruction in Beginning, Intermediate, and Senior Bands and Orchestras. All of these groups serve Central by performing during school activities and at special concerts throughout the school year, thus bringing the enjoyment of good music to those who have no talent in this field.

The mathematics department is the part of the school program that does the most figuring. This department deals solely with numbers and concepts and ways of working with them. Everything from the simple processes or arithmetic to the complexities of solid geometry and trigonometry is meticulously explored. To succeed in this area, a student must be able to deal reasonably with abstract concepts. He must also have the patience required to work for a long time on tedious and complex problems, which often seem pointless. All of mathematics, though, has a logical basis. The elementary processes are taught in the seventh and eighth grades. In the ninth grade, advanced processes are taught in algebra. Plane geometry in the tenth grade covers the theories of figures in a plane. Taught in the eleventh grade are solid geometry and an advanced course in algebra. Still more modern and complex courses are available for the senior year. During the course of these studies, many of the exotic parts of mathematics are also touched upon. Mathematics requires a great deal of work, insight, and patience.

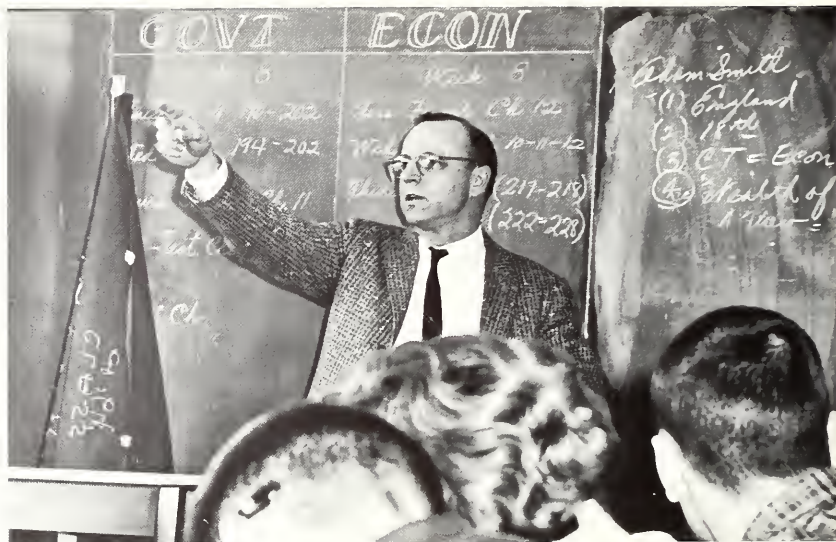

Mr. Ten Elshaf explains the graph of a linear equation to his students.

Math Presents Unknown Fields of Study

Mrs. Jayce, Mr. Berends, Mrs. Frein, Mr. Taylor, and Mr. Grill make up the major part of the math department.

Mr. King rapidly defends himself against the onslaught of student questions.

Social Studies Mold Future Citizens

Miss Chapman answers one of the many questions asked her by her American history class.

The social studies department teaches students to play a useful role in the life of the community, nation and world. This department is first designed to create an active, intelligent, and self-reliant citizen who has developed a sense of patriotism for his country. In the process, the students gain a respect for our country's traditions, an appreciation for its accomplishments, and an understanding of the processes and techniques of our democratic form of government. A study of other forms of government and the opinions of others are also presented in order to instill in the students an understanding and tolerance for these things. On a more personal level, the students study the economic and social problems of their environment. In connection with this, social studies teach the pupils how to work together co-operatively on common goals or problems, to enjoy their social heritage, and to develop a moral standard by which to live. The students in this area also gain the abilities to use information and to logically solve problems. The social studies does all these things through its courses in geography, civics, American and world history, government, economics, family living, and modern problems.

Mrs. Holmes lectures on the current world crises.

Part of an efficient social studies department are Mr. Hecker and Mrs. Harrigan.

Capable teachers as well as coaches, Mr. Cleaveland and Mr. Pasthumus are assets to Central High.

Development of Young Bodies Their Goal

Mr. Sharphorn and Miss Kiter are an able team for developing the youth of Central Physical education is a required course for all Junior High students. Two years of physical education is required of Senior High students for graduation. The physical education program is designed to promote good general health habits, improve the students' physical fitness, acquaint them with the basic rules of various games and activities, and provide an opportunity for them to acquire fundamental skills by participation. The broad aim is to develop interest in worthwhile leisure time activities and to make our students knowledgeable enough to become better participants and spectators. Inter-school competition engaged in by the various teams throughout the school year provides the students with exciting events and the chance to develop good sportsmanship.

Happiness Is a Quiet Study Hall

The study halls of Central High are a rather unique part of the curriculum. Nothing is taught in them; yet students learn while in them. The purpose of the study hall is to provide a quiet place in which students can work and study. In a study hall, a pupil can do his homework, study his assignments, or "bone up" for any test he may have. If a student has no studying to do, which is not too often, he can quietly read a book, magazine, or newspaper. Study hall hours also provide time for students to make up tests and assignments or to work on extracurricular activities. The study halls occupy an important place in the school program.

The exhausting position of study hall supervision is carried on by Mr. Martis, Mr. Lamokaski, and Mr. DeYoung.

Special Instruction Develops Abilities

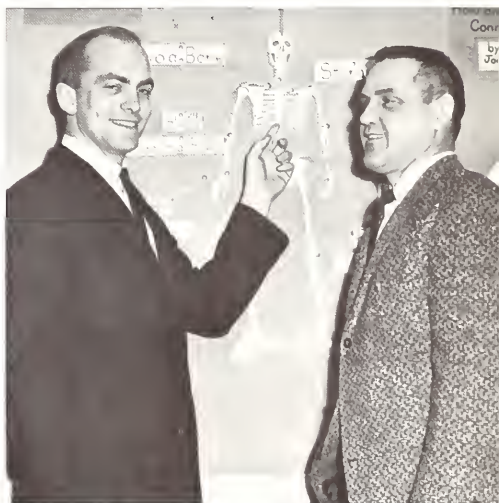

Miss Westra examines her file for information on one of her students.

Our school board, in carrying out its program of equal opportunity for all students, has organized special education classes of various types to implement this principle. Classes membership in these is limited. This fact "sets the stage" for individualized instruction. At present there are three teachers who are working in the area of academic development. Whenever feasible, special education students attend regular shop and home economics classes, art and music classes, and regular academic classes and participate in varsity sports. Throughout the program, emphasis is placed on the teaching of realistic self-evaluation and self-supporting work skills. These two important facets are an integral part of special education. A full time job, under the supervision of the city-wide job coordinator, is a requirement for graduation from the senior high program.

One of the vocational training instructors, Mr. Laham, prepares himself for his next class.

Mr. McDermatt exhibits one of his physiological displays to Mr. Tovey.

Learning a Trade Through Experience

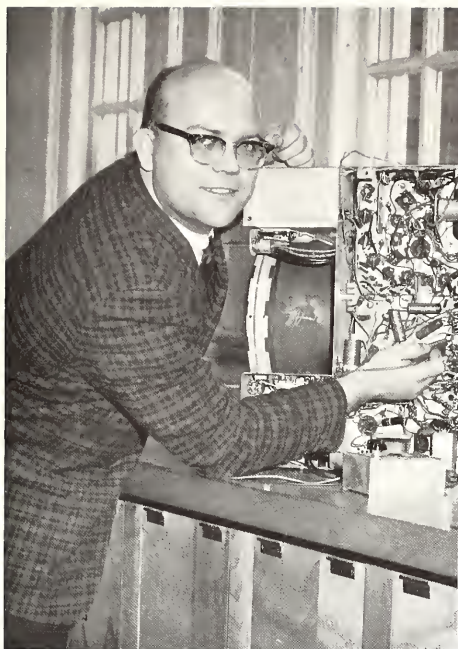

Mr. Hietala and Mr. DeVries pause in their work to pose for a picture.

Mechanical drawing teacher, Mr. Bennett, points out a flaw in a student's plan.

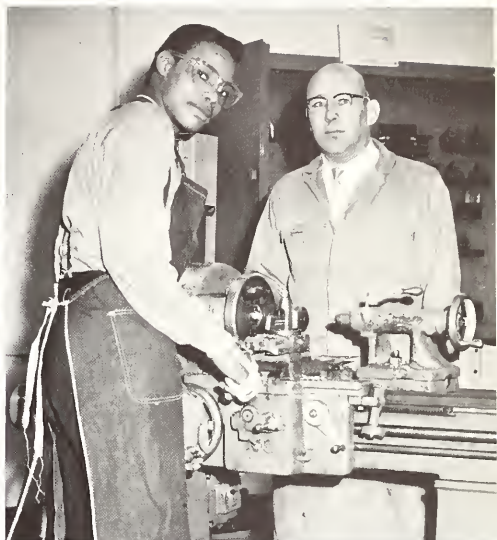

The aim of the Industrial Arts Department is to prepare students for both industrial and professional occupations. This is done through the presentation of information and skills related to various fields of work. One of the courses presented is industrial designing, which prepares a student to enter the professions as an architect or draftsman. Graphic arts courses are available to anyone who is interested in the many phases of the field of printing. For the student who is interested in working with wood, there are courses which will teach him the use of the many machines and tools used in this line of work. If, on the other hand, the student is interested in machines himself, he can gain first hand knowledge and experience from our excellent machine shop. Another of the many areas available for study is electronics. This field is important because of the great need for trained technicians to build, install, and repair the multitude of electrical machines used for science, industry, and the home. Another class which prepares many boys for useful occupations is shoe repair. The department hopes that it has succeeded in its purpose and wishes that all boys would take one or more of these courses during one of their senior high years.

The intricate wiring of a television set is shown by Mr. Ludwick.

Mr. Hauga, machine shop teacher, shows a student the correct way to operate a lathe.

Mr. Miller and Mr. Voyce inspect one of the printing presses used in the vocational training program.

Art Captivates Students' Interests

Sheldon Williams and Sarah Rosenblatt help Miss De Loof put up a display of seventh grade art.

Mr. Marris and Mr. Duquette consider the merits of a piece of sculpture.

Safety Stressed In Training Classes

Mr. Barcheski, drivers' education teacher, prepares to leave for the driving range.

Though only a one semester, part-time subject, driver training is an important part of the school curriculum. Through a combination of classroom instruction and actual experience, a student learns how to properly handle an automobile in today's traffic. In the classroom, he learns the "rules of the road" and the laws which govern our streets and highways. The student gets to practice his new found skills on our city's well-equipped student driving range. How well he learned his lessons is shown when the student takes his final road test. If he is successful, he is eligible to obtain his driver's license. If he is not, well, back to the driving range.

Mr. Beattie is caught in a rare moment of leisure.

The seventh and eighth grade fused program is organized on a basis unlike that of the other departments at Central. Instead of having a different teacher for each class, students have the same teacher for two classes. Any information from other departments which may affect this area is channelled to it through the department head. The unique setup of this program enables it to pursue an extensive reading course in addition to its other classes. The students' reading ability is tested and up graded in the seventh and further developed in the eighth grade. Two special education kits are used along with remedial reading classes to do this. This training prepares the students for senior high studies.

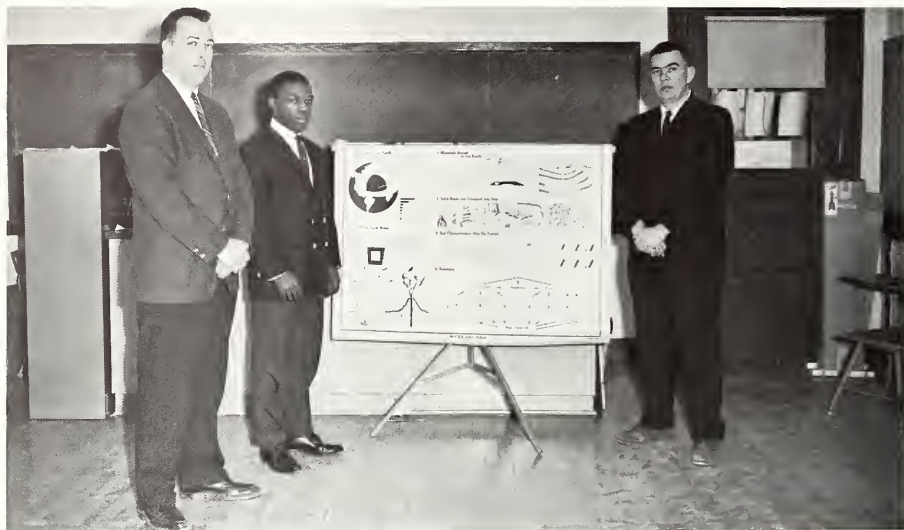

Mrs. DeBoer, Mr. Janaitis, Mrs. Atchinson, Mrs. Wingeier, and Mr. Price discuss the particular problems of their department in an after school conference.

SCHOLASTIC MAGAZINES
WORLD NEWS

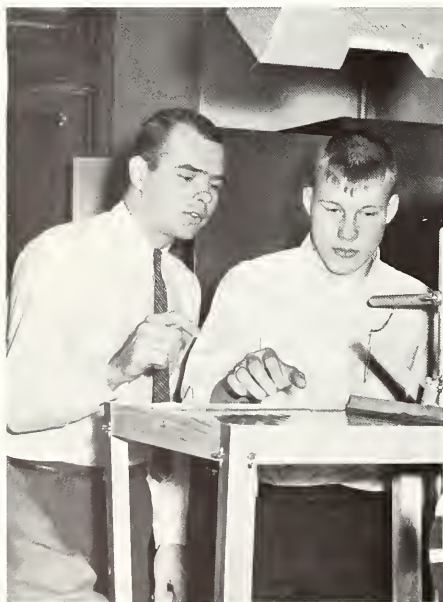

The eighth grade teachers, Mr. Reagan, Mr. Treur, Mr. Mandeville, and Mr. Fox, help launch their students on a successful high school career.

Mr. Burchell, M. Butler, and Mr. Schultz examine a chart for the new earth science course.

Science Department

In keeping with today's space age, students at Central High can receive a fine education in science. This education starts in the junior high when the students' appetite for science is whetted by courses in health and general science. These courses give a general background in the biological and physical aspects of the world in which we live. If the student desires more knowledge in this area, he can take courses in either or both of the two sections of senior high science. If the pupil is interested in what makes living things "tick" he can take biology and physiology. The first deals with all forms of life, while the latter specializes in the human body. Courses in chemistry and physics are available for anyone who is interested in natural phenomenon. Matter and its composition and reactions are the subject of chemistry. Physics, on the other hand, is concerned with the natural laws of the forces and energies which dominate our universe. Many fascinating experiments are formed in connection with these science studies. Experiments serve to illustrate to the students the principles which they have studied. Of course, only the best equipment is used in these investigations. The Science Department is one of the most modern departments in our school.

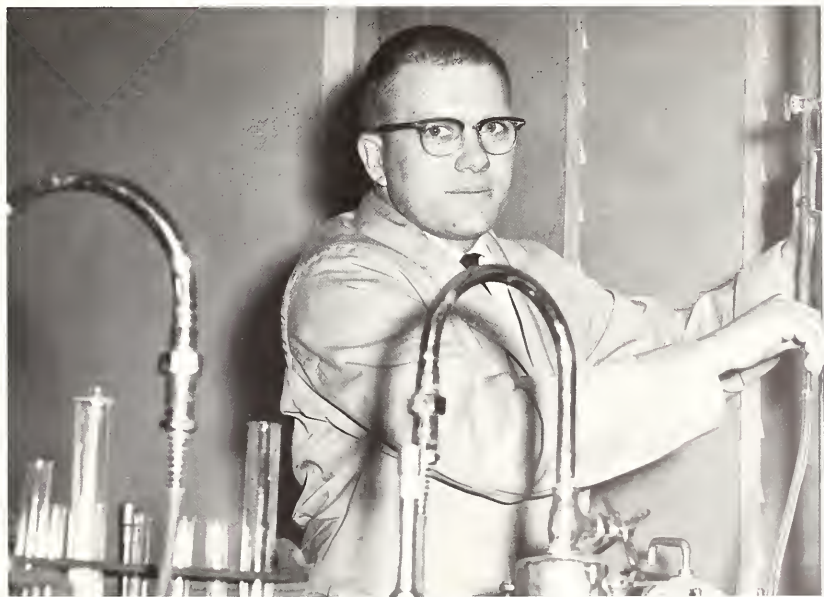

Mr. McGovern, physics instructor, explains the operation of a basic experiment performed by Karl Hasmanis.

Displaying a new piece of equipment used in biology are Mr. Kieras and Mr. Grieg.

Delves into Unknown

Chemistry teacher and science department head, Mr. TenHave assembles apparatus for one of numerous experiments.

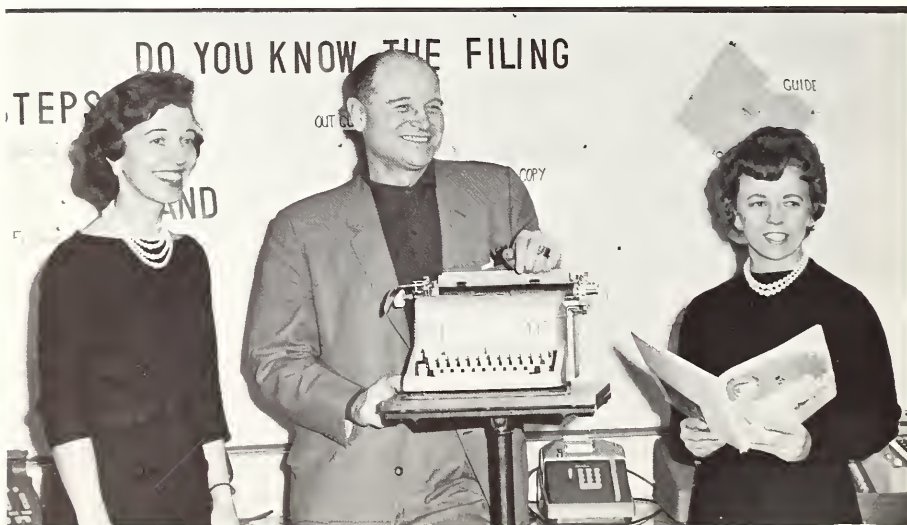

Teachers Groom Students' Office Skills

Mr. VanDop assists a student with a problem in bookkeeping.

The Business Department seeks to provide opportunities for all young people to develop their general education and vocational preparation for community living. It does this through a wide variety of courses. The most popular course is typewriting because of its value for personal as well as business use. All of the courses, however, are designed to prepare young people for the business world. For example, the prospective secretary would be interested in typewriting, bookkeeping, and shorthand or office practice. Also, students pursuing a career in retailing should study business math, typewriting, business law, and distributive education. Qualified students may select on the job training correlated with the office practice and distributive education courses. This training provides opportunities for students to learn while they are earning money in local business establishments. Such courses prepare students for a life in today's business world. This training is beneficial to those who do not plan on going into business, too, by making them more able to handle their private affairs.

Mrs. Stryker, Mr. Kaps, and Miss Myllyla display some of the equipment used in the business department.

Home economics teachers, Mrs. Sokolowsky, Miss Sobrasky, and Miss Uggem, confer on the progress of their students.

Students Develop Home Making Skills

Mrs. Orlyk checks the homework of one of her students.

The home economics department is designed to improve efficiency, understanding, and responsibilities in present and future family life. This is done through a continuous series of instruction. All seventh grade boys and girls are required to take a general introductory course in home living. This course includes working with foods and getting adjusted to new situations and friends. An introductory course to the senior high courses is given to all girls in the eighth grade. If they are interested in continuing in this field, the girls may elect to take courses in either foods or clothing in the ninth and tenth grades. The foods course teaches the students specialized skills used in foods work plus the possibilities of employment in such work. Clothing and tailoring techniques and an introduction to family clothing are included in the clothing course. In the eleventh or twelfth grade, students can take personal regimen and home management. This course teaches self improvement and home decorating and studies the effective use of time, money, and energy. Community and school services connected with class work are involved in developing the homemaking skills.

Mrs. Mottashed and Mrs. Keegstra handle Central's attendance problems.

Secretaries Contribute to Smooth Operation

Mrs. Keegstra and Mrs. Mottashed do a very efficient job in the attendance office. Each day, Mrs. Keegstra prepares the lists of absences and excused absences, deals with tardiness, and keeps attendance records. Mrs. Mottashed handles the very persistent problem of truancy in our school as well as in other area schools. Their services are instrumental in keeping students in school to complete their education.

The always friendly and helpful members of the office staff of Central execute the secretarial tasks which are needed to run the school at its peak performance. Their jobs include the keeping and filing of records of the students and doing paper work for the administration and counselors. The faculty and students rely very greatly on the proficiency of this staff.

Our efficient office staff is Sharan Winters, Martha Geelhaed, and Margaret Welmerink.

Students Appreciate Good Meals, Tidy School

A school, like any efficient organization, must be kept in good condition in order to run smoothly. Our maintenance staff at Central has kept the building in excellent condition and performed numerous emergency repairs. This staff renders invaluable service by heating the school, delivering supplies to teachers, and maintaining Central's pleasant appearance. We owe the maintenance crew a great deal for helping us present a good image of Central.

The thought of one relatively small staff feeding hundreds of "starving" students is amazing to most of us. Yet daily, Central's cafeteria staff does exactly this. These trained dieticians not only serve nourishing, well prepared meals, but also must meet specific budgets and comply with rigid time schedules. Their services even include running a snack bar and cleaning the lunchroom after the students leave. Our cafeteria staff enables the three lunch periods to run smoothly, efficiently, and pleasantly.

SENIORS

Today's Dreams; Tomorrow's Realities

With graduation, the world of a senior draws to a close. The year will fuse with memories - a jumble kaleidoscope, of impressions. The cheering throngs at football games; the splendor of Homecoming with our king, Rocky Rosema and queen, Mary Gravelyn; the mystery of our senior play, "The Spiral Staircase." Christmas, and with it the annual Christmas assembly, followed by a vacation and the annual frolic of our twirp dance, "Three Coins In a Fountain."

A new year began, and seniors planned projects, held numerous class meetings, and shared laughs with dress-up day. As a climax to our successful and memorable year, we shared Numeral Day and Class Day-and finally the excitement of Prom and Graduation.

June not only ends the school year of activities for the seniors, but it is also the time for seniors to decide whether to go to college or enter the business world. Miss Lucile Meyering, the senior class counselor, works with us every step of the way, from college information to college applications. Our year has been full of college exams, business interviews, and job hopefuls. The last days of school, brimming with activities, seemed to fly by. The year of leading, learning, and fun is over and now today's dreams will become tomorrow's realities.

Smiles and hard work set the day for the Senior Class Officers. President, Richard Gerritsen; Vice President, Nancy Watring; Secretary, Ruth Jobse; Treasurer, Elaine Sampanes; Girl Advisor, Mary Gravelyn; Boy Advisor, Tim Celmins.

Class Poem 1964

*We have waited, we have dreamed,
The day has come which will start us through life.
We want to begin the journey,
To meet its challenges we have schemed.
But wait! Don't hurry us so, we are afraid!
Are we now strong enough to discipline ourselves?
Are we wise enough to walk paths laid?*

*You tell us we are ready . . . Are we?
You say we will do well . . . Will we?
You say that we must hurry . . . Must we?*

*Should we rush through like a tornado
Traveling through a city, careless and destroying,
Paying no heed to secure homes
And disregarding peace found in lovely gardens?
Being only a heedless force,
Touching the earth as our foe,
Finally dissipating into nothingness.
Is this the way to go,
Hurrying through life completely unaware of it?
These times make haste seem necessary — urgent.
But wait! Let us go more slowly
Absorbing the knowledge we will need.*

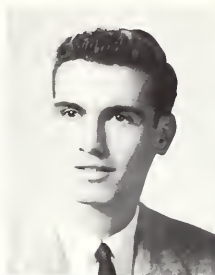

*Let us dream of great tomorrows,
For of such dreams reality is often made.
Let us build more slowly a life of strong girders
Founded on a creed.*

*So — You say we are ready . . . We are!
You say we will do well . . . We will!
You say that we must hurry . . . We won't*

*We will go out to meet the world in fear, Yes!
For only fools feel no fear.
With courage, Yes!
For it takes courage to face the future which is near.
With faith, Yes!
For we believe that by meeting our challenge
And by giving only of our best WE CANNOT FAIL!!*

A warm addition to Central this year has been Esther Ryu, lower right, a post graduate student from Korea.

Class Song 1964

Each passing year has left its mark
 Forever in our minds.
 As graduation day draws near,
 A memory unwinds;
 Hand and hand we learned to tread
 The narrow paths of life.
 As friendship wove its pattern true,
 We shared our joy and strife.
 Enriched with knowledge, strength, and hope,
 We grope, we grasp, we climb!
 As now begun, we must press on
 To reach those heights sublime.
 Courage from experience has sprung
 And made us free.
 Oh, Central, my youthful days were spent
 With thee!

Top Ten Lead Class

Throughout their high school years, these students have shown outstanding scholastic ability. The ten are S. Ingram, C. Riach, J. Palma, P. Landauer, J. Brayman, E. Koukios, M. Whitman, M. Van Allsburg, S. Myers, and B. Porter.

UNDERCLASSMEN

Changing from the limited opportunities and surroundings of elementary school to the vast world of high school is a challenge which the 7th graders of every year must meet. They must adjust themselves to these new surroundings and the idea of having several teachers in several different rooms instead of one teacher in one classroom. The subjects to which these students are exposed reveal many new and various interests. These interests they can show through belonging to activities and organizations planned for 7th graders. All through this year the students are beginning an era of co-operation, self confidence, independence, and responsibility.

Seventh graders learn by doing in the home living classes.

The eighth graders return to school full of confidence which was brought about by past experiences. They have already become acquainted with routine, other students, organizations, and opportunities. Through organizations like Junior Red Cross, Junior High Student Council, Junior High Chorus, Intermediate Band or Orchestra, Junior Y-Teens, and other groups, eighth graders acquire knowledge and the ability to get along with others which is necessary for the future leaders of our country. Also, during this year, the students must choose their courses for the following years. This is a new and very important step because they are charting the course of their future lives.

Decisions Lie Ahead

With two years behind them, the freshmen return to school with feeling of importance and responsibility. During the year they are the head of the junior high and are largely responsible for maintaining their government body in the form of the Junior High Student Council. Promoting activities which are for the benefit of the freshmen and the junior high as a whole is a major activity. The two main organizations for the Freshmen are the Junior High Ushers and Junior High Cheerleaders. Also during this year the freshmen are provided with study halls to relieve some of the tension of increased and more difficult courses. The freshmen are a fully co-ordinated part of Central.

Enthusiasm Yields Progress

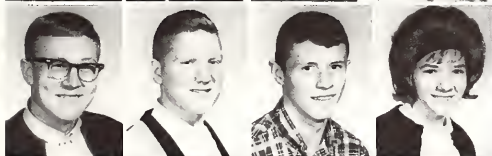

The tenth graders were organized last year for the purpose of sponsoring projects and activities. This year, under their able leaders and their advisor Mr. Kieras, they have shown their ability to handle responsibility and participate in senior high activities like Boys' Heaven and Homecoming. This class was originally organized to get the class unified, enabling them to earn money for their junior and senior years. The class was a great success in the two years that it has been organized. The boys, who are becoming sport conscious, are now able to try out for senior high sports teams. Along with their activities, their responsibilities become greater and their studies become harder. They are learning to deal with different types of problems and to think more for themselves as they are nearing their senior year.

Class officers: R. Helms, President; S. Anderson, Vice President; P. Barlow, Secretary; R. Schiefler, Treasurer.

Driver Training classes provide educational and sometimes hazardous experiences.

Karl Hasmanis helps two sophomore machine drafting students with one of the many problems that arise.

Class officers: L. McKeever, Vice President; F. Griffiths, Treasurer; E. Huizenga, Secretary; G. Gazella, President.

Independency Becomes Responsibility

With two more years of high school to go, the eleventh grade marks a very eventful year for the juniors. After being organized for one year, the members of the class have found good leaders, and they now feel their responsibilities even greater. Along with the officers, Mr. Hecker, advisor, supervises the planning of events but does not interfere, thus leaving the responsibility up to the members of the class. These responsibilities included participation in the Student Council, senior high sports activities, the musical, and helping plan and coordinate work on Boys' Heaven, Homecoming, and the Junior-Senior Prom. Highlight of the junior years is the arrival of the long awaited class rings and with this big event, eleventh graders begin to feel they are closer to graduation. As a result of this junior year, the members of the class become more mature and responsible students.

ACTIVITIES

Homecoming Court: Judy Snyder, Dick Gerritsen, Ruth Jobse, Tim Celmins, King Rocky Rosemo, Queen Mary Gravelyn, Kirk Strong, Ellen Drew, Jack Budnick, and Mary Dirkmaat.

Autumn Leaves" Creates Spirit

This year's festivities of the 1963 Homecoming were again incorporated into a weekend, October 25 and 26. The 1963 Homecoming Court was presented to the students and faculty on Friday afternoon. Central High was represented by Homecoming Queen Mary Gravelyn and her court, composed of Mary Dirkmaat, Ellen Drew, Ruth Jobse, and Judy Snyder. The Queen was escorted by the Homecoming King, Rocky Rosema, and his court which included Dick Gerritsen, Kirk Strong, Tim Celmins, and Jack Budnick. Mr. Romulus Romani then proceeded to officially crown Queen Mary and present her with a dozen red roses. That same night, October 25, the Queen and her court were again presented to the fans before the homecoming football game with Catholic Central at Houseman field. Saturday night's traditional Homecoming dance was held in the school gym, which was gaily decorated with multi-colored trees, cornstalks, a beautiful fall mural, and a netlike ceiling to emphasize the effectiveness of the fall season. Saturday night marked the climax of a beautiful and memorable weekend.

Ellen Drew is presented to the audience along with her escort, Kirk Strong.

Mary Dirkmaat with Jack Budnick tensely wait for the court presentation.

Ruth, Mary, and Judy enjoy a snack before the Homecoming game at Hauseman Field.

Couples dance to the dreamy music provided by the orchestra.

Radiant with the excitement of the coronation ceremony, Mary and Rocky descend from the stage.

The Plot Unwinds

Tingling drama was displayed in this year's senior play "The Spiral Staircase." The audience was carried along waves of suspicion, hatred, and wonder at the colorful scenes before them. The setting of the play proved to emphasize an eerie and formidable mood. "The Spiral Staircase" opened with thunder and lightning flashing through the windows of a moldy and musty parlor room. The theme revealed itself in the winding staircase which was located in the center of the stage. To the left of this action spot, the audience was transplanted into the gloomy bedroom of the fearful step-mother. To the end, the audience was held spellbound and was involuntarily drawn into the intricate web of the murder plot.

"Three Coins" Makes Big Splash

This year's Boys' Heaven Dance had an international air. The theme of "Three Coins in the Fountain" provided a most enjoyable setting. Decorations were centered around three bubbling fountains, surrounded by four pillars. The tables were placed in cafe style on risers circling the center fountain and dance floor. The Roman theme was also greatly accented by the color scheme. Soft blues and silver were the main order of the evening. The evening's music was provided by the Central High Swing Band, under the direction of Mr. Newton Becker. This year's dance was not preceded by a twirp week; nevertheless, there was a substantial interest taken in the dance by the student body. Sponsored by the Senior High Student Council, the actual organization of the dance involved a great number of people: sophomores mainly headed the decorations; the juniors were principally in charge of entertainment and other odds and ends; the seniors headed the main organization of the dance. Through a unified student body effort, led by the Student Council, this year's dance proved to be a success.

Cathy and Dick solemnly place flowers at the memorial, as part of the veterans day assembly.

The 63-64 year at Central produced a bountiful crop of interesting and colorful assemblies. The subjects covered by the assemblies varied from "Homecoming" to safety topics. Heading the list of the more solemn assemblies was that of Veteran's Day. In traditional fashion the Veteran's Day assembly was carried out in a very solemn manner to accent the deep meaning attached to it. Another example of a more reverent assembly was the Honor Society's formal initiation. Further highlighting the "assembly season" in a somewhat more joyous fashion was the annual Christmas assembly. Various novel acts contributed to the lively air of the "Pops" Concert Assembly. Proving to be the apex of all assemblies was the visit of Astronaut Roger Chaffee, an alumnus of Central. Following a more educational format, the Student Forum assembly sponsored by the Senior Student Council, proved to be a much needed information source to the student body. Also possessing an academic air were the numerous safety assemblies which informed the student body on various aspects of safety in water, driving, and many others. These assemblies along with others helped to make the 63-64 year at Central one which will remain in the memories of students, faculty and administration.

Assemblies Highlight School Year

The Christmas assembly is highlighted by the performance of the Senior Choir under the direction of Mr. Schellenberger.

"Oklahoma!" Captivates Central

Ali Hakim helps Aunt Eller try on a special Persian garter.

Actors go over their lines a few minutes before curtain time.

This year, the Senior Class, the Music Department, the home economics' sewing classes, and many others teamed up to produce the Broadway hit musical "Oklahoma!" instead of producing the usual Variety Show. The Musical turned out to be a tremendous success. "Oklahoma!", the second musical to be attempted at Central, is possessed of a colorful western plot which includes everything from feuding cattlemen and farmers to "haymow" courtships. Although it was a fairly lengthy performance, the audience's attention was held throughout because of the witty dialogue and the beautiful musical numbers. The clever sets and the colorful costumes also added a realistic western flavor to the show. A great deal of hard work was done by all but probably none was so arduous or more greatly appreciated that that performed by Mr. Schellenberger. Mr. Becker, Miss DeYoung, Mrs. Roman. Mr. DeYoung and Mr. Duquette. The ticket sales were handled by the Business Club, the costumes and properties by the senior class, and the back stage operations by the stage crew. Everyone connected with the production enjoyed the work they did. "Oklahoma!" was a success in every way.

Prom Crowns Senior Year

With the coming of spring, plans for the Junior-Senior Prom took top priority over other senior activities. A great deal of planning went into this social finale for seniors. Committees worked hard to find a suitable place and planned refreshments, decorations, entertainment, chaperons, and other last-minute details that set nerves on edge. For the boys there was the question, "Whom shall I take?" and for the girls, "I wonder who will ask me?" For both seniors and juniors the prom had a special meaning. To the seniors, it was the last social event of their high school life, and perhaps the last time they would see many of their schoolmates. To the juniors, it was the last time they would meet their classmates socially until fall. To all of them, it was a "once in a lifetime experience" which they will never forget.

The Prom holds a very special meaning for all seniors, as is shown by Bonnie Van Arlsen and Don Van Putten.

Seniors Marsha Veeneman, Rocky Rosema, and Ruth Jobse look forward to their graduation.

Central Seniors Move Toward Goal

In the hectic moments before the graduation ceremony, Geneva Turnipseed is seen helping Hermistine Johnson on with her cap and gown.

The senior class of 1964 moves toward the apex of its educational experience with mixed feelings. There is sorrow that high school years are almost past and happiness in the anticipation of exciting years to come. Graduation day itself is of short duration but it holds within itself happy memories, vain regrets and the pain of parting. The words "I'm glad it's over" soon lose their potency when the final chords of the school song are played and the last diploma presented. To a student, his senior year is very special and graduation day is the crowning touch. To a few, graduation day cannot come quickly enough but to most it seems to arrive far too soon. Realizing that inevitably they must step out into the world and pick up its burdens, the seniors are grateful for the knowledge gained during the past years and intend to move forward to make today's dreams tomorrows realities.

The English Workshop, which is held every day during the sixth hour in room 214 under the capable direction of Miss Shirley Schriber, is a valuable aid to many Central High students who need extra help in the preparation of themes or in understanding grammatical sentence structure. Outstanding English students act as tutors to those who are in need of help and are happy to give this hour to aid their fellow students. The students who take advantage of this added instruction are amply rewarded by the improvement in the work they do for their teachers. The workshop is probably one of the most valuable services offered at Central.

Central Depends on Student Crews

One of the least glamorous but most vital groups contributing to the efficient operation of Central is the stage crew. The jobs of this able group vary from adjusting the microphones for assemblies to handling the complete backstage operation for the senior play. Few realize the immense amount of work this group does in order to provide pleasant, smoothly running productions of all types for the student body. Furthermore, their work does not end with auditorium organization, but includes such tasks as providing ample lighting for dances held in the gym. No special qualifications are demanded in order to become a part of the stage crew, but the members must be able and willing to undertake the training necessary to the job. A great deal of time is given by members of this group, and their service is a concrete example of true school spirit and is given without expectation of public recognition.

Senior Council Serves as Governing Body

The Senior High Student Council is the most important student organization in Central. The purpose of it is to organize and carry out the government of the student body. In the process of doing this, the Student Council participates in many activities and projects, and coordinates the activities of all clubs. The council's activities included a clean-up campaign, sponsorship of leadership clinics and safety assemblies, and the sending of delegates to the Regions 9 and 13 Student Council Fall Convention. As projects, the Student Council started and contributed to the "Harold Bolt Fund" and the "Counseling Fund". The Homecoming and Boys' Heaven dances were also under the guidance of the Student Council. Another important project was to set up committees to study the problems of the students and faculty-student relations. Solutions to many of the problems have been suggested by these committees. The Council is composed of representatives from each homeroom, its elected officers, and various committee members. The Student Council, under the leadership of Mrs. Holmes and Mr. King, is a very valuable body which brings a sense of organization to the school.

Future Leaders Trained in Junior Student Council

The co-ordinator of the junior high is the Student Council. Being a very active group the members were able to fulfill the primary function of providing activities for the Junior High students and helping the school in any way possible. In the fall, they issued I. D. cards to all students; later in the year they sponsored two mixers. The very successful student forum assembly provided a question and answer time for all students and further informed them of school affairs. Several sales were sponsored throughout the year to strengthen their treasury. This year proved to be very successful for the junior high group under the supervision of Mr. Reagan, Mr. Ritsema, and Mr. VanDerLaan.

The Boys' and Girls' Glee Club is the culmination of vocal training in the Junior High level. Made up of ninth and tenth graders the students are divided into two separate groups which unite to form a mixed chorus. To add to the spirit of Christmas, the chorus sang in a Jr. High Christmas Assembly as well as singing carols in the halls. The Spring Concert is another big and exciting event for these singers as they work hard to prepare to give the best performance possible. Using this group as a stepping stone, many members continue to work on the development of their voices so as to join the senior choir when they reach the eligibility. The group is under the co-sponsorship of Mrs. Roman and Mr. Schellenberger.

Helping Hand Club Spreads Fellowship

The junior and senior high students of Eastern Orthopedic School are qualified for membership to the Helping Hand Club. To provide fellowship and service, the group members pledge to extend to fellow members and to others the helping hand and, in doing so, extend the philosophy of helpfulness to mankind. As the main service project, the members worked hard to earn money to help the seniors for their class trip to the New York World's Fair. They also had a monthly project of giving aid to a specific family. Working along with the National Association for the Physically Handicapped, many joint activities were carried on by the members. This year's group, under the guidance of Mrs. Sehler, also worked very closely with Central's Senior Student Council on various projects and committees.

Co-Editors, Theron Elliot and Mark Van Allsburg, look over the latest edition of the "Rampages".

A group of specially selected senior high students is always found scurrying about the school collecting tidbits and stories for Central's newspaper, The Rampages. A six to eight page edition is put out monthly for all of the student body which gives information on school events, college opportunities, sports, fashions, and the students' opinions. The junior high students also have a section devoted especially to them in which newsworthy items appear. The staff of fourteen members also serves as a clearing house where the students may express their views on various topics. Included with each issue is a bonus, the Roto magazine, which has items pertaining to high school students throughout the country. The Rampages was very fortunate this year to have Miss Berg serve as its sponsor.

Senior Ushers Speed Assemblies

In the spring of their junior year, a group of students is selected to serve as Senior Ushers. At this time, they serve at senior activities such as Class Nights, Numeral Day, and Graduation, so that they can become acquainted with their duties and learn to perform them in a very competent manner. During their senior year, the ushers continue to fulfill their duties at all assemblies, the Senior Play, and the musical. These students are selected by the teachers on the basis of leadership, citizenship, and their scholastic record. To obtain funds for the treasury, the group, under the guidance of Miss Chapman, held various food sales throughout the year.

Head ushers, Jack Budnick and Dick Gerritsen, caught in a quiet moment preceeding an assembly.

One of the most helpful groups in the junior high is the ushers. It is their duty to quietly and quickly usher in and out students of seventh through ninth grades at all junior high assemblies; these being the Honors Assembly in the spring, pep assemblies, Pops Concert, the Christmas assembly, and several others. This group of freshman is selected by the junior high faculty on the basis of leadership, scholarship, and personal qualities. The members organize and choose head ushers who assign posts. The ushers hold various food sales throughout the year to strengthen their treasury.

Food and friends are always a good combination at monthly Agona spreads.

The girls join forces to clean up.

All junior and senior girls with at least a "B" scholastic average and one year of G.A.A. are eligible for membership to Central's most outstanding girls' organization, the Agona Club. The informal initiation held at school, when the girls are hilariously dressed, is followed by a formal initiation tea at which the members pledge to uphold high scholastic records, to attain leadership, and to maintain excellent personal qualities. On the first Tuesday of each month, spreads are held at school with the girls being responsible for the food. The Agona Club also makes Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets, along with a Thanksgiving project, for the children at Mary Free Bed hospital. They also sponsor several Jr. High Dances and have red and green carnation sales for Valentine's and St. Patrick's Days respectively. In addition to this, the organization presents awards: a scholarship to Junior College to a graduating member; the Tri Honor Cup, which is one of the most coveted honors, to a senior girl; and the Agona Cup to an outstanding freshman. All this is done at the spring Honors Assembly. The group was sponsored by Miss Kiter this year.

Athletes For Service

This year, as in past years, the C-Club has worked diligently to fulfill its purposes and live up to its traditionally high standards. The purpose of this club is to bring all letter winners of every sort into a closer relationship by inviting them to take part in a grueling initiation at the end of each season. The main object of the club this year was to finance the transportation of a ram's head from Alaska to Central. This was done through the sponsorship of several dances and food sales. The beautiful mascot was encased in a glass trophy case and displayed in the main hall for all the school to admire for many years to come. At Christmas time the members helped out two families through donations of food baskets. The basketball season was highlighted by the hilarious C-Club vs. Faculty game that has long been a tradition at Central. In the spring, the club hosted a dinner for all members and coaches and awarded a scholarship to a deserving student to the college of his choice. These many activities, all carried out under the guidance of Mr. Cleveland, show the importance and value of the club.

In its second year of existence, the Business Club proved to be very helpful to the students and to the faculty as well. The members are students from the tenth through the twelfth grades who have at least a "C" average and who are majoring in business courses. In addition to taking dictation and typing for a small fee, the members undertook three major projects. They kept records of all ticket sales for the Senior play and the Musical, they participated in "Toys for Tots" at Christmas time, and sponsored a special project for hospitalized children at Easter. This year the club was under the capable leadership of Mrs. Stryker.

Future Engineers Plan for Tomorrow

The Junior Engineering Technical Society was formed to stimulate interest in engineering, science, and mathematics. This year sixteen senior high students comprise its membership. The society is open to anyone who has some proficiency in algebra, having had at least one semester with an average grade, and agrees to the regulations of the society. Each member must also indicate a sincere interest in the project that is undertaken each year. This year the group did the necessary research to plan the building of a rocket. At the Junior High Spring Honors Assembly, the J.E.T.S. gave a five dollar award to the best Junior High mathematician.

To learn about the opportunities of teaching is the main purpose of the Future Teachers Club. Coinciding with the opportunities of teaching, the club tries to cultivate the qualities needed to make a good teacher. The members aid junior high and grade school teachers in miscellaneous activities about the class room. To give the proposed new teachers added experience, the principals from Hillcrest, Coit, and Fountain consented to permit students to participate in class activities during their study hall time. The club has also set up a point system whereby at the year's end, if this number of points exceeds a set standard, he or she will receive a merit pin. The Future Teachers Club has sponsored a senior high dance and has had various food sales. Mr. Barkema and Mrs. Kemp worked with the group in augmenting the students' knowledge of teaching.

Junior Classical League - Salutamus

The Junior Classical League, a successor to the Classical Club, is a relatively newly formed organization at Central, making its debut in 1963. Stimulating interest in the Latin language is one of the main goals of the members. This is accomplished by conducting the meetings in Latin. A prerequisite for entrance is at least one semester of Latin, which makes the members able to communicate in the language. Another important duty is to foster an appreciation for the cultural aspects of ancient Greek and Roman life. The main method of doing this is through discussion groups and speakers on these subjects. The children of Mary Free Bed Hospital also welcome the Junior Classical League members during their frequent visits as they attempt to put added enjoyment into their lives by entertaining them and making notebooks for their use. The spirit of giving during the Christmas season was felt by these members as they contributed to the Santa Claus Girls' goal. The responsibility of advising this organization went to Miss Fennell, the Spanish and Latin teacher.

Big Brothers and Sisters Show the Way

A club at Central that is greatly appreciated by the seventh graders is the Big Brother-Big Sister Club. The main responsibility of the members is to orientate and aid the new students. In the spring, these juniors take the sixth graders on a tour of the building and the classrooms. During the first few weeks of school in the fall, the last new-comers found it easy to distinguish the members by the Big Brother-Big Sister tags that they wore. These new students could ask the members any questions which might arise as they become accustomed to the conditions at Central. The proceeds that came from their food sales were used to give a cup in the spring to the outstanding eighth grade boy at the Junior High Honors Assembly. This service group is under the direction of Mrs. Atchinson, a seventh grade fused teacher.

The purpose of Youth for Christ is to develop good character, high ideals, and a well rounded individual by encouraging him to follow the standards of a Christ-centered life. Membership to Y.F.C. is always open to everyone in the seventh through twelfth grades and all meetings are open to anyone who wishes to attend. In these weekly meetings, a variety of programs, such as panel discussions, special speakers, influential films, and comical skits are presented to interest and inform all members. Because Y.F.C. strives to help students form a good character, including leadership qualities, it encourages all members to take part in the weekly programs and in the outside activities of the club. These activities have included very profitable food sales, a car wash, a hayride, a Christmas carol sing, and a very successful potluck. In all these ways, the 1963-64 school year has been very successful for the Youth for Christ, and the students who are in Youth for Christ. This year's group was under the leadership of Mr. Grieg.

Sr. Y-Teens Serve Usefully in Community

V. Praasterink, I.C.C.; A. Sampanes, Treasurer; C. Mick, Secretary; M. Berry, Vice President; E. Sampanes, President.

A very active group at Central is the Sr. Y-Teens. Working closely with the Grand Rapids Y.W.C.A., the members strive to encourage Christian spirit, friendship, and service. This fall the girls collected food for a Thanksgiving basket to be given to a family in need. At Christmas they also made a basket along with having a demonstration for Christmas decorations. In conjunction with the Y.W.C.A. they dressed dolls for the Santa Claus Girls and displayed them in the case in the front hall. They had several speakers attend their meetings, such as a foreign exchange student attending CHS from Germany; a former Miss Michigan, Karen Southway; a speaker on flower arrangement; and a counselor speaking about summer jobs. They also made Valentine cookies and sent cards to the veterans. Food sales were the main source of income; proceeds being used to send a representative to a weekend State Mid-Winter conference at Clear Lake, Battle Creek; another girl to Cleveland, Ohio, for a week-long National Conference; and one member to the Summer Conference at Hope College for a week.

This year's Junior Y-Teens has been especially active with group projects. The first of the year began with a cupcake sale and the collection for U.N.I.C.E.F. on Halloween. The Christmas season found the girls working on doll clothes for the Santa Claus Girls. Another successful activity was a cookie sale when all of the girls baked their cookies together in one of the home economics rooms. The children of a local orphanage welcomed several Y-Teens every other Saturday when they went to read stories and entertain them. Many of the Jr. High girls enjoyed the assembly put on by the Y-Teens featuring Karen Southway, former Miss Michigan. Along with making Valentine cookies for the Veterans, they worked in conjunction with the Central Y.W.C.A. to put on a variety show for them. All of these projects help to fulfill the purpose of the Junior Y-Teens which is to build fellowship of girls devoted to the tasks of realizing in our common life the ideals of personal and common living as Christians.

Senior Red Cross Serves Those in Need

An important service organization, and the largest in Central, is the Red Cross. The membership is divided into two groups: the first being the active members and homeroom representatives; and the second, on the inactive list, those who contributed to the fund raising drive in the fall. The money that was contributed will be used by the National Red Cross to provide services for people in distress in the Grand Rapids area. One of the most important and worthwhile projects this year was going to the home for the blind in groups of three. Every Monday night the residents of the home eagerly awaited their arrival so that they could write letters, read, or just visit with them. The members also helped the junior high group with their rummage sale. Through their work and assistance of Miss Cassidy and Miss Berk, the members learned how to take on responsibilities and gained great satisfaction from helping those in need.

Row 1: S. Zaidenworm, Historian; B. Benham, Publicity; L. Dudley, Secretary; J. Wesorick, President; P. Mikrut, Treasurer; Missing from picture S. Martineau.

Like the senior high chapter, the Junior Red Cross has an extensive fund raising drive at the beginning of the first semester. Anyone who has made a contribution is then allowed to join along with the home-room representatives and their alternates. Taking the role of a service organization, the group spent many hours at the Home for the Aged entertaining the elderly people. They also filled gift boxes which contained a number of small necessities such as tooth-brushes, combs, etc. As a fund raising project the Red Cross held a rummage sale at which all members contributed to make a success. Under the guidance of Mr. Duquette, the group proved to be one of the most worthwhile junior high organizations at Central.

Le Cercle Francais Reflects on the French Society

To become members of Le Cercle Francais, students must have at least one semester of French and participated in the initiation, dressed as French men. The proceedings at the meetings were conducted in French so that the students would become better acquainted and more proficient with the French language. Beautiful movies and slides along with speakers further developed their knowledge of the French culture and customs. The art of cookery was attempted by many members as they had various potluck dinners featuring French foods. The treasury was built up by the sale of Rams' pins and doughnuts. The club, co-ordinated with the French courses offered in the curriculum is under the direction of Miss Kukor.

Audio-Visual Staff Is Teachers' Right Hand

The Audio-Visual staff is made up of both boys and girls. This staff aids teachers in presenting a more varied program for the benefit of the students. All hours of the day they assist teachers in operating projectors and record players, move projectors from floor to floor, and run errands when requested by teachers. They supply our library with current educational films and keep the catalogue and files in order. In the course of operation, films are often broken; when this occurs, the alert audio-visual crew splices the film, making it as good as new. Running the projectors is man's work, but keeping records up to date is for the girls. Mr. Posthumus has a very capable crew of typists who add and subtract entries from records. Each audio-visual worker is chosen directly by Mr. Posthumus. At the beginning of the year, volunteers are recruited from the study halls; these are approved in three basic areas: dependability, personality, and a scholastic average of C or better.

Honor Society Encourages Scholarship

Secretaries: Nancy Watring, Mary Whitman, Treasurers: Jim Palma, Sue Myers, Vice Presidents: Bill Myers, Cathy Riach, Presidents: Mark Van Allsburg, John Brayman.

Twice a year a very impressive assembly is put on by the National Honor Society to induct new members. Three main goals, scholarship, leadership, and service, are taken into consideration when selecting students to join this society. The group then serves the purpose of creating enthusiasm for scholarship, promoting worthy leadership, and encouraging the development of character in the student body of Central. The Lost and Found Department is open every day before school under the supervision of the members. Citizens in India are informed on the news about happenings in and around the U. S. by receiving magazines from our local chapter of the society. As a means of building up the treasury, homemade bread was sold during the Christmas season. Under the joint leadership of Miss Schriber and Mrs. Harrigan, this group proved to have a very successful year.

One of the duties of the members of the library club is to work at least two hours a week assisting students and faculty members in finding helpful material. Often these duties entail finding books for entertainment. In addition they check the time on students' permits and keep the books in neat order on the shelves. Making a scrap book that pertains to C.H.S. and the achievement of the students is one of the main projects of the library club. To create further interest in new books, they also keep a show case of current books on the second floor up to date. Fifteen members from the ninth to twelfth grades, who are very interested in library work, make up this very helpful organization that was founded in 1951 and is now under leadership of Mrs. Brower and Miss Roggenbuck. This is a very necessary club to Central and without its help many students would find completing their assignments difficult.

This year's successful debate team was made up of fifteen members. Meeting as a class during the first semester, the members of the team spent many hours preparing for debates with other high schools. They chose topics that would help them in understanding world affairs. Under the supervision of Miss DeYoung, the team took part in all the city league meets. The members also participated in the Kellogg Tournament. Much was learned about the techniques of debating at the High School Debate Clinics held at Western Michigan and Central Michigan Universities.

G.A.A. Builds Sound Minds and Bodies

The Girls' Athletic Association has as its main purposes building good sportsmanship and citizenship in its members through a program of sports. Belonging to G.A.A. helps many girls meet new friends from the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades. The girls meet each Tuesday from 3:15 to 4:00 p.m. The members comprise six teams which compete against each other in various sports, such as softball, volleyball, basketball, and badminton, along with having scooter and other relay races. They also use the mats for tumbling. The girls also joined an inter-school volleyball league, which will serve as a measure to strengthen inter-school relations. As projects, the girls have food sales and sponsor a junior high dance. At the athletic honors assembly, the first year members are awarded a numeral of their graduating year, the second year members receive a small "C", and the third year veterans are awarded an all city honor pin. This year the club is under the guidance of Miss Kiter.

Orchestra Plays a Major Cultural Role

The members of the Senior Orchestra are advanced instrumentalists who have the ability to play classical and semi-classical music with understanding and accuracy. They have added to the cultural phase of the students' life by presenting programs during our assemblies, by playing at the spring concert, and by joining with the choir in the presentation of the musical "Oklahoma". They also give of their time by playing during P.T.A. meetings and preceding events such as the Senior Play. Several members of this orchestra are also members of the Grand Rapids Junior Symphony Orchestra, which meets for rehearsal each Saturday morning in our auditorium. Each year, several talented orchestra members receive scholarships to Interlochen or the Michigan Music Camp.

The Junior Orchestra was formed to make possible an opportunity for young people to become more proficient in the use of their chosen instrument and to learn to play together as a unit. They have an opportunity to broaden their general knowledge of music and learn to appreciate it. This orchestra performs at the Spring Concert and at the "Pops" Concert. It is from this group that musicians for the Senior Orchestra are chosen. Under the direction of Mr. Becker, this group endeavors to encourage the growth of musical talent and, from time to time, members of this group who have shown great promise may have an opportunity to receive music camp scholarships.

Choir Serves Through Singing

E. Snyder, Secretary; P. Riley, President; P. Kloet, Treasurer; C. Mick, Vice President.

"The pitch-middle C" is often heard by the members of the Senior choir. This musically inclined group is made up of over sixty students from the tenth through twelfth grades. In November the beautiful selections sung by the choir added to the serenity of the Veteran's Assembly. The capability of the members to participate in the presentation of choral music was also displayed when the group appeared at the Community Vesper Service at Park Church with the Grand Rapids Symphony Orchestra. Also during the Christmas season, the halls were filled with music the day before vacation when the choir sang carols. Many assemblies as well as special programs are scheduled to include this fine musical group. Under the direction of Mr. Schellenberger, many choir members also participated in this year's musical Oklahoma. The major profit making was a city-wide light bulb sale along with several food sales.

The Junior Chorus shows that it has instrumental as well as vocal talent.

This year the Junior Chorus was given opportunities to uncover their hidden talents. The first appearance was at the Christmas Assembly, which was followed by several music assemblies and the Spring Concert. Singing under the direction of Mr. Schellenberger and accompanied by Mrs. Roman, this group of junior high students is provided with a chance to widen their horizons in the field of music and to learn that co-operation and harmony are very necessary for successful group singing. They are also given the opportunity to uncover their hidden talent while receiving additional instruction and experience in the performance of choral music. These seventh and eighth graders generally continue their activities in the Boys' and Girls' Glee Club and eventually the Senior Club.

Senior Cheerleaders Promote School Spirit

Captain Judy Snyder, demonstrates a cheer.

Central's cheerleaders in action.

"Come on team fight!" is one of the many cheers heard by those who attend the sports events at Central. Seven reserve cheerleaders are present at all freshman and second team games and also at varsity games as substitutes. The varsity squad plans pep assemblies and promotes school spirit along with cheering at all varsity football and basketball games. They also hold spreads before the games with cheerleaders of the opposing schools in efforts to promote better interschool relations. Both squads work in unity to raise money by having car washes, food sales, and junior high dances to send some of their returning members to summer training camp. The senior squad under the direction of Miss De Young, along with the reserves led by Mrs. Prein, did an excellent job in building school spirit.

Bands and Golden Girls Stimulate School Spirit

The band program at Central High School makes possible six consecutive years of musical training for any music student desiring it. During these years, the student increases his general knowledge of music, learns to appreciate all types of musical compositions, and becomes more proficient in the use of his chosen instrument. The student is provided with a wealth of background experience and training from which he can draw in later years. While enjoying these benefits, band members are at the same time serving their school by performing during assemblies and playing at the "Pops" concert. It is at the football games where they are the most appreciated. This group is joined by the Golden Girls who add beauty and excitement through the use of clever drills against a background of band music.

This year's football team, expected to be the dwellers of last place, battled its way to a fine third place finish with an even 4-4 won-lost record. This enabled it to finish just one and a half games out of first. With the outstanding efforts of all-city guard Kirk Strong and all-state halfback Roger (Rocky) Rosema, the determined play of the seasoned seniors, and the energetic determination of the juniors and sophomores, the team was able to better its 1962 record. Coupled with the fine running of Rocky Rosema and Will Edwards, the passing attack of quarterbacks Kim Miller and his great receiving ends Dick Gerritsen and Don Van-Putten rounded out the offensive attack and provided the mainspring of the squad throughout the eventful season. Reserves Work Hard; Lose Close Ones

The success of a football team cannot be measured in victories and defeats. To the reserve squad, who finished with a 2-5 won-lost record, the season was a tremendous success. The coaches and players realized it was a period of intense learning and development for next year's varsity hopefuls. After losing five of his eleven starters to the varsity squad, Mr. Barcheski and his able assistant Mr. McGovern worked hard to re-organize their team and prepare it for the coming season. From every mistake the team learned and from every defeat its desire for victory rose until it was adequately rewarded with victories over Creston and West Catholic. Along with the skills acquired, the team developed an attitude and spirit which will make it a welcome segment of next year's varsity squad and a dangerous contender in the city league.

Mr. Barcheski discusses equipment problems with his manager Bob DenBarber.

Mr. Mandeville and his able manager Dan Kabaos replace freshmen equipment after a successful season.

Coached by Mr. Earl Mandeville, this year's freshman football team, fielding a staunch defense and a powerful offense, charged its way to the city league championship. This even balance between offense and defense enabled the little Rams to outplay such pigskin powerhouses as Creston, West Catholic, Union, and South. Under the guiding eye of Mr. Mandeville, whose instructions are the vital factors in preparing these boys for varsity duty in future years, the team finished with an unblemished record. The most crucial game of the season for the freshmen was against powerful Catholic Central, a team which hadn't tasted defeat in its first five games of the season. This game, however, proved one-sided as Central finished on top with an admirable 26-0 victory. The game clinched the city league crown for the frosh team and gave Central its best freshman football won-lost record in history.

After a sluggish start, losing the first three meets, this year's Cross Country team fought back to end the season with a 3-1 record, due to the brilliant coaching of George Cleveland and his assistant John Butler. The great determination of many sophomores and juniors helped lead the team to a high finish in the Regional meet. Most of the runners were out for the first time; therefore, the squad was hurt by inexperience. Robert Kopen, a senior, the team's number one runner, and Richard Runyan, a junior, helped the team with their one-two combination throughout the season. Robert Kopen was the only harrier from the squad to qualify for the state meet at Ypsilanti. The team's hopes for a fine season next year lie in the great determination of such sophomores as Richard Cooper, Eric Jansson, and Bruce VanderJagt.

Rams Rebound From Dismal Start

This year's basketball squad labored through the most discouraging first half season in recent years, winning only one game, an overtime victory against Catholic Central, out of nine encounters. However, when things looked dismal, this squad rebounded and gained a momentum which carried it through the District Tournaments and into the Regionals. The team displayed poise, skill, hustle, and confidence in its defeat at the hands of powerful South. In this game, the Rams played viciously and threatened to take the game until a late South surge in the final minute extinguished the Rams' upset hopes. Central then lost to Catholic and beat Creston; then lost to Ottawa by one point. Next, the apex of the season was reached in the second game against the undefeated Christian Eagles, ranked third in the state class A ratings. In this game, the Rams assumed the role of David the giant killer and dealt Goliath a stinging defeat. The squad led throughout the contest and survived a late Christian rally to win by one point. This upset victory propelled the team past Union and West Catholic to finish the season with a 6-8 won-lost record in the city league and a tie for fourth place.

In the tournaments, the Rams collected easy victories over West Catholic, Cadillac, and finally Creston, to capture the District Championship and bring home the trophy. Riding on six straight wins, the Rams met Marquette in the first game of the Regionals and suffered a bitter defeat at the hands of the Redmen.

Hampered all season by a lack of height due to the promotion of three sophomores to the varsity squad, this year's second team, coached by Mr. Fox, rebounded from a disastrous start to complete the season with a 4-12 won-lost record. The season started with nine straight losses which included two heart-breakers that the team lost in overtimes by a total of two points. Then the tide began to turn with a thrilling upset victory over South. After the lead had changed hands many times in the last few minutes, Marlin Clark sunk a desperation shot to capture the game for the Rams with a 50-49 score. The squad went on to win three of its next seven games for a sixth place finish with four wins and twelve defeats. The season was sealed with a victory over West Catholic when the Hilltoppers, behind the shooting of Marlin Clark, Barry Baldwin, and Roger Schieller, racked up their highest score of the season. This squad, expected to adequately fill in for graduating seniors, will be a welcome addition to next year's varsity team.

Players and coach take advantage of a time out as Mr. Fox plots the squad's next move.

Frosh Capture Their Second Crown

Classroom basketball is a vital part of preparing a team for action. Here Mr. Butler, freshman coach, goes through a play on the black-board.

This year's freshman class has produced its second championship team of the year. Following the example of their football team, the freshmen set a torrid pace in the city league basketball race and captured the title with an untarnished won-lost record. In the words of the freshman coach, John Butler, the team had the "desire, ability, and hustle" which enables a good team to become a championship team. The most exciting game for the squad came against Ottawa, the last event of the season, when the apprentice Rams put their undefeated record on the line. It was an uphill struggle all the way, but the little Rams were victorious. Outstanding individuals on the team and possible varsity candidates next year include Eugene Grady, John Walsh, James Kemp, and Ward Severson. Rich in the talent and spirit of a winning team, the squad is looking forward to the next three years and the excitement of varsity competition.

Swim Team Lacks Strength; Wins One

Swimming is the most demanding sport known to man, yet at six o'clock in the morning a hardy breed of young men can be seen trooping into the Y.M.C.A. to prepare for competition. Under the guidance of a new coach, Mr. McDermott, the team worked hard for its single dual meet victory. This victory was against West Catholic and was the result of a strong, united team effort. The squad was a small, yet experienced unit, crippled by a lack of consistent first-place finisher. This void was partly filled by Bruce Barber, the team's high point man, swimming in the freestyle events. Tom Oole, Jack Schoon, and Steve Hula also worked hard in their individual strokes. Depth and versatility was added to the team by Larry Vergouwe, Bob Myers, Dick Jordan, Terry Wozniak, and Jack Potter. Yet no squad can win by themselves, and a lack of student support was felt by the team. With a showing of not more than ten spectators at each meet, no team can work up to their greatest potential. Although the season seemed a disaster, it was a period of learning and experience for the promising junior and sophomore who are looking forward to victorious years in the future.

Swimming coach Mr. McDermott and his captains Tom Oole and Bob Myers, admire the championship team of years gone by.

Mr. Fox started practice in early March in preparation for the 1964 track season. Due to the graduation of fifteen letter winners from last year's squad, Mr. Fox was faced with the problems of a new, undeveloped team. The team did, however, show a great deal of talent and desire, and it worked hard in practice throughout the spring. Leading the players to victory in competition were veterans Rocky Rosema, John Vandenberg, Rudy Booker, Paul Ceton, Walter Durham, and Ulysses Scrivens. In addition to these runners, there were many returning veterans and up-coming boys from former freshman squads who were a great asset to the team. These boys, along with returning lettermen, had great potential, and under the watchful eye of Mr. Fox, this team was a definite dark horse contender in the city league race, and it finished with a fine record.

Head track coach Mr. Fox and his able manager Dick Landauer talk over the latest eligibility lists.

Freshmen Set for Track Competition

Having a freshman class rich in athletic ability to work with, Mr. Barcheski hoped to field a championship team in freshman track this year. This class had thus far produced undefeated teams in football and basketball, and it took aim on another first pace finish. A large turnout by seventh, eighth, and ninth graders for the team demonstrated the zealous attitude the junior high possessed for athletics. This large turnout also provided Mr. Barcheski with a large field of talent with which he created a winning team. Boys who looked good in meets throughout the spring included Jim Cass, Sylvester Figures, Milt Koukios, Eugene Grady, and Bob Rosema. During the season, the boys also gained valuable experience and education in the fundamentals of track competition in preparation for varsity participation in future years.

Rams Take Aim at First Place Finish

Seen here, with an added member of this year's baseball team, a mechanical pitcher, is head coach, Mr. Cleveland.

"Spring had sprung" and so had a talented Central baseball team which had a definite ideal—the Championship. Working exceptionally hard in the gym and at Hillcrest, this team prepared to set the city league on fire with hot bats and good fielding. Veterans and lettermen returning from last year's squad were pushed for positions by talented underclassmen hungry for competition. This rivalry between team members produced hard work and a lot of hustle from each individual player in attempts to capture a spot in the starting nine. Leading the team to victory were Kim Miller, Dick Gerritsen, Bob Krueger, and Eric Williams. New faces in the lineup included Will Edwards, Roger Scheifler, Dave VanDyke, and Ed Cook. Mr. Cleveland's boys played a hard fast brand of baseball which included many bunts, hit-and-run plays, and stolen bases. Under the watchful eye of Mr. Cleveland, the fine combination of veterans and rookies enabled the varsity squad to enter the season as a definite contender and complete it with marked success.

Frosh Gear For Third City League Title

Because freshman ball is the only experience many boys receive before joining the varsity squad, Mr. Martis, as coach of junior high baseball, plays an important role in the development of baseball talent at Central. Approximately thirty-five boys answered the call for the freshman team this year and from these players Mr. Martis developed a hard working, determined team which never gave up and always played well. This squad, although it lacked pitching strength and depth in the outfield, proved to be no push over for opposing teams. One of the squad's major assets was its quick, strong infield. Here, Ward Severson, Jim Zarafonetis, and Bob Burke proved to be a talented unit on defense. Wayne Sharporn, who captured the team batting crown last year as a seventh grader, returned as an experienced outfielder this year, and he did a fine job for the team. Mr. Martis worked hard with these boys all spring to teach them the basic fundamentals of baseball and to develop their individual abilities, and this will provide Mr. Cleveland, the varsity coach, with a talented crop of sophomores with which to work in the 1965 season.

Mr. Martis instructs his catcher and team captain, Jim Zarafonetis, in catching methods.

Tennis is an exhaustingly fast sport which requires much practice and conditioning. In an attempt to whip a winning team into shape, Mr. McGovern started practice in early March this season with sessions in the gym every morning before school. In his first year as coach, Mr. Mike McGovern had an experienced and talented squad with which to work, and he did a fine job in coaching this team for Central. The boys rewarded their coach for his efforts by playing exceedingly good fast tennis on the courts of Franklin Park in match after match throughout the season. Veterans who returned to the squad from last year's team included Evans Koukios, John Bradfield, Tim Celmins, Pete Samuelson, Mike Crabb, and Bill Dawson. These veterans were joined by a number of sophomores and juniors who were groomed for varsity competition in 1965 and 1966. Due to the desire and ability of the squad, the team finished with a successful season, their first in many years.

This year's new tennis coach is Mr. Mike McGovern.

Golf Team Studded with Valuable Talent

With a large number of returning lettermen, the golf squad expected to finish high in the final standing of city league competition. Coach DeVries had an experienced crew returning to attack the area golf links in his second season of coaching. With lettermen Dennis Bush, Joe Kuzniak, Jack Pressy, Larry Scudder, and Dick Jordan to lead the way, the season's play proved to be very interesting and exciting. These young men from Central practiced long hours, sometimes staying out on the fareways and greens until dark, in preparing for the season's competition. The young divit-makers used their drivers, irons, and putters to the best advantage in working for a good season and strong finish. This was a determined squad which Mr. DeVries led, and it did not falter in head to head competition and was a credit to Central High School athletics.

Golf coach Mr. DeVries discusses the coming season of competition with Dennis Bush and Dick Jordan.

Under the direction of Mr. Sharphorn, the athletic staff has proved to be a hard working and smooth operating staff. Mr. Sharphorn has handled the vast responsibilities of athletic director admirably. Since he is responsible for supervising matters dealing with the school's athletic teams and contests, much of his time is spent in working with the coaches and officials of each sport. Still this job is too large for one man to handle alone and much time and effort are given to the school by other faculty members: Mr. TenElshof, in charge of finances; Mr. Ludwick, handling eligibility and insurance; and Mr. Laham, the equipment manager. Aiding Mr. Sharphorn are the athletic secretaries, Mary Dirkmaat and Kathy Grawburg. It is their responsibility to keep records and eligibility lists, sell tickets, and organize the athletic assemblies. They have worked hard and efficiently and deserve recognition for their hard work and time spent serving the school.

Mr. Sharphorn, athletic director, refreshes his memory on basketball tactics.

The Helios has always been the result of the work of many people, and this year's annual is no exception. Throughout the year, the staff labored for numerous long hours. Members not only used their regular school time, they also gave up time after school and during Christmas and spring vacations to this endeavor. Last summer, three of the staff studied yearbook editing at the Communications Arts Institute at Michigan State University before they assumed their duties. A fitting reward for the sacrifice and dedication of the staff is this year's Helios.

The staff wishes to express its appreciation to the people who have helped in the processing of this book: Printing Arts, Central Trade Plant, the S. K. Smith Company, Dekker and Sons, and West-Dempster. We would also like to express our special gratitude to the faculty, the administration, and the students of Central High School, without whose cooperation the annual would not have been possible. Special appreciation should also be given to our advisors, Miss DeLoof, Mr. Beattie, Miss Schriber, and Mr. Miller, for their patience, aid, and understanding.
